

Project Title: InoAcademy by Vilnius Academy of Arts

Hosted By: Vilnius Academy of Arts

Project Introduction:

Designers from Vilnius Academy of Arts in Lithuania are experimenting with new materials from algae, food waste, eggshells, glaze from the ashes of a power plant and unsorted glass waste. The materials research is part of the InoAcademy, a project to strengthen entrepreneurship.

About Organisation:

Vilnius Academy of Arts (VAA) is the oldest and largest university of arts in the Baltic States established in 1793. The Academy offers bachelor's, master's and doctoral studies in the fields of art, design, architecture and art history. Today the Academy has more than 1,500 students in four faculty locations – Vilnius, Kaunas, Telšiai and Klaipėda.

Individual Participants

Name: Ieva Laskeviciute

Project Name: Jewellery collection Reload

Project Introduction:

The jewellery collection analyzes the relation between carbonate-class minerals calcite, aragonite, and dolomite and hen eggshells. The chemical composition of these minerals almost perfectly matches that of eggshells found in most household environments.

Name: Airidas Skublickas

Project Name: Cinivtro

Project Introduction:

Cinivtro is an experimental material made of cogeneration plant slag and unsorted glass waste. There is a huge potential to use it for mass production – from protective coatings for surfaces, such as enamels for metal or glaze for ceramics, as well as to produce ceramic masses.

Name: Rokas Dovydenas

Project Name: 3D ceramic furnace reconstruction technology

Project Introduction:

A complex system that helps to restore furnace tiles in a more sustainable and less expensive way. With the help of 3D ceramics scanning and printing technology, the production of equipment matrices becomes less complicated, lower numbers of defects and minimises storage.
